About Us

The Chabad Relief Project's food distributions allow the less fortunate among us to benefit from the kindness of our community, making their lives easier.

The Chabad Relief Project brings volunteers from all backgrounds together to partake in the act of giving. With energetic leadership, the Chabad Relief Project creates excitement around the fundamental values of charity and community service.

Our Mission

Chabad Relief Project's mission is to assist needy families and individuals by delivering food packages directly to their homes. The Chabad Relief Project also provides a unique volunteer experience, allowing people of all backgrounds to come together as a community and work for the benefit of those less fortunate.

Who does CRP help?

CRP serves a wide variety of people, from families with young children, the unemployed, people living with mental or physical disabilities, to seniors living on a fixed income while struggling to make ends meet. We also assist many Jewish immigrants from the former Soviet Union who are living in government housing projects. Our clients are primarily Jewish; however, CRP will provide food to anyone who asks for our help.

Why are we doing this?

For many recipients, the work of CRP means the difference between eating regularly and going without. Many of our recipient households live at or below the poverty line and are unable to purchase all of the food they need each month without the help of CRP. Others have an illness or disability that makes it difficult to get to the supermarket or do not have reliable transportation to a local grocery store.

Dear Rabbi Heber,

I just wanted to say thank you for the food package. When no one else would offer, it is a honor that the Jewish community will extend a helping hand... it is immensely appreciated.

Sincerely,
V. H.
